

Simone Shin studied picture making at Boston University and Art Center College of Design. She works as an editorial illustrator, a children's art instructor, and a children's book artist. Her artwork can be seen in the Illustrators Annual, American Illustration, and Creative Quarterly. She lives in the San Francisco Bay Area.

I'D LOVE TO ILLUSTRATE something highly imaginative. Maybe kids who travel to outer space or far-off lands, something with mystical beasts, or deep-sea creatures. I also love the magic in everyday situations, like picnics, community celebrations, and family gatherings.
