

Chiomma Hall (she/they) is a Black queer illustrator based in Atlanta, Georgia. She earned her bachelor's degree in Art History at Auburn University and has been doodling sweet scenes of community ever since. When they're not illustrating, you can find them baking sweets, drinking tea, and spending time with loved ones.

“ I AM INTERESTED IN picture books and graphic novels with colorful counter-narratives that explore family, friendship, queerness, mental health, history, and minority communities. I love playful color, brave characters, and imagined worlds. ”
